Materials

LDPE, Low Density polyethylene

The most common flexible packaging we supply as its one of the cheapest and most versatile, it offers good strength and excellent clarity.

MDPE, Medium Density Polyethylene.

Stronger and more puncture and tear resistant than MDPE, we use it mostly for applications where more strength is required or goods in rougher environments, because its sometimes a little more milky coloured when produced in natural or clear. The film is typically done in white or black and used as timberwrap, ufilm or carry bags.

CO- Extruded

We can make u'film in LDPE or MDPE on a co-extrusion line, giving you a white coating on the outside to reflect heat and a black coating on the inside to help absorb heat from inside the wrap.
